

Heart Talk: Teaching Your Patients to Live with Heart Failure

Evidence-based Education for Health Care Professionals

Purpose

- Review the science and evidence regarding heart failure and its treatment
- Understand how to evaluate the clinical status of a patient with heart failure
- Provide six key recommendations to help patients with heart failure live well
- Demonstrate tips for clinicians to educate patients
- Begin discussion of palliative care

Modules

1. Understanding the Science of Heart Failure
2. Evaluating Patients with Heart Failure
3. Six Key Recommendations for Patients with Chronic Heart Failure
4. Teaching Your Patients
5. Discussing Palliative and End of Life Care

For information on the Heart Talk videos,
please visit us on our website:

www.qualidigm.org

or email us at:

HeartTalk@qualidigm.org

Credits

The Hospital of Central Connecticut

- Shelley Dietz RN, MBA

Qualidigm

- Anne Elwell, RN, MPH
- Michelle Pandolfi, MSW, LNHA

University of Connecticut Health Center

- Wendy Martinson RN, BSN
- Jason Ryan, MD, MPH

This material was prepared in collaboration with Qualidigm, the Medicare Quality Improvement Organization for Connecticut, under contract with the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS), an agency of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The contents presented do not necessarily reflect CMS policy. Pub #CT-800100-2011052

The views and opinions expressed here do not reflect the policy or position of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, nor of Qualidigm. Examples and information provided are for educational purposes only and should not be construed as medical advice. Any person with questions or concerns relating to any medical condition or treatment should consult with a qualified health care professional.

