

Learning and Diffusion

Qualidigm provides educational opportunities for healthcare professionals and consumers with the goal of improving health, lowering costs and improving quality through the application of improvement science and adult learning principles.

We develop collaborative learning sessions that focus on promoting evidence-based practices and lessons learned based on identified gaps in care.

Our clinical experts work with the healthcare community to improve patient outcomes through the thoughtful application of such evidence-based practices including needs assessments, multifaceted interventions, sequencing, interaction and commitment to change.

Additionally, we incorporate diffusion, a concept that overlaps considerably with learning, to spread innovations or other ideas across social groups, including healthcare professionals and consumers.

Who We Are

Qualidigm is a mission-driven healthcare consulting company that provides innovative and scientifically-based solutions to transform care and improve care delivery and patient outcomes. With nearly 200 peer-reviewed articles published, Qualidigm is recognized among the healthcare provider network as a facilitator and leader in performing peer-reviewed research, providing evidence-based education, and implementing learning sessions that foster collaboration and accelerate change.

Our professional staff has expertise in clinical medicine, quality improvement, patient safety, public health, patient-centered medical home (PCMH), care coordination, utilization review, data evaluation and analysis and patient/provider education. The staff includes Registered Nurses, Physicians, Social Workers, and many other staff with advanced degrees, e.g., PhDs, MAs, and MBAs.

Qualidigm is part of a team that is serving as the Medicare Quality Innovation-Network Quality Improvement Organization (QIN-QIO) under contract with the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services for New England. Previously, Qualidigm served as the Medicare QIO for the State of Connecticut charged with protecting the rights of Medicare beneficiaries and improving the safety and quality of care they receive.

We serve a diverse group of healthcare stakeholders in government, industry, and clinical practice including academic institutions, national and international healthcare consulting firms, local and national foundations, healthcare providers in all settings, payers and purchasers.
